

First Annual National Natural Landmarks Photo Contest

Paynes Prairie, Florida

Paynes Prairie State Preserve is the largest and most diverse freshwater marsh in northern Florida. It is a major wintering ground for many species of waterfowl, as well as habitat for other wildlife. The site is a superlative example of prairie formation in a karst area, and contains the Alachua Sink, which is one of Florida's largest and most famous sinks.
